MONDAY 23 MARCH #08

BEHIND THE JOB: Sustainability Consultant

What do they do?

Sustainability Consultants help organisations reduce their environmental impact by analysing operations, identifying improvement opportunities, and developing sustainable strategies. They work across industries to support energy efficiency, waste reduction, and long-term climate goals.

What are their strengths?

- Analytical and research skills
- Strong communication and stakeholder engagement
- Passion for environmental and social impact

How do they get started?

Many start with a bachelor's degree in environmental science, sustainability, business, or engineering, while VET qualifications in environmental management can lead to entry-level roles and specialised pathways.
